

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

It is judged whether an inclination of a spindle is out of a predetermined range, and a position of a head is controlled so as to compensate for the inclination upon detection that the inclination of the 5 spindle is out of the range. The position of the head is controlled based on a phase correction quantity, based on an amplitude correction quantity, using a repeat control method, or using a compression filter.